RECENT DEATHS.

Young.
The flag at half mast over Grand Army Hall on Tuesday morning was the first announcement that St. Johnsbury people had of the death of Comrade Loren W. Young, the oldest veteran of the civil war in the United States. Mr.
Young had been in his usual health this winter and the summons came at about 7 o'clock in the morning, the cause of his death being old age.

Loren W. Young was born in Canterbury, N. H., Dec. 7, 1803, being the oldest of 13 children of Benjamin and Mary J. Young. He comes of good old revolutionary stock, his maternal grandfather, Samuel Jackson, having fought at Bunker Hill. He inherited longevity, his mother living to be over 100 years old.
When Loren was two years old the family removed to Wheelock to occupy a farm, and a few years later located in Waterford where Mr. Young lived until he was of age. In 1826 Mr. Young started as a lumberman in Canada rafting logs down the St. Lawrence river to Quebec. In 1830 he was married to Betsy Harvey of Charlestown, and she died in 1877. Seven children were born to them, five of whom are now living, Benjamin F. Young of Worthington, Minn., Mrs. Marshall Clifford of St.
Johnsbury, at whose home Mr. Young died, Mrs. Wesley Colby of Sutton, Mrs.
R. F. Stevens of Sioux City, Ia., Mrs. L.
Turner of Lamont, Ia., and Mrs. Ira Brown of Pasadena, Cal.

When 58 years old the war broke out and on Oct. 28, 1861, he enlisted in Co.
D, 1st Vt. Cavalry. He was mustered into the service Nov. 19, 1861, and taken prisoner June 30, 1863. Rather than furnish a mule for his transportation the rebels paroled him the same day.
It was on this occasion that he received a saber cut on the hand in a cavalry charge at Hanover, Pa. The comrade officer inquired, "Yank, how many people have your men around here?"
"Enough to lick the devil out of you," replied Mr. Young. The reply was addressed to the cavalry commander, Gen.
Fitzhugh Lee, late consul-general at Havana. After being paroled he served his country faithfully three years longer and was mustered out of service Nov.
18, 1864. He was known in the army as "Father Young" and was selected as the most reliable man to drive one of the ambulances. During Gen. Banks' retreat from Strasburg he was the only ambulance that got through with his load of wounded troops in safety to Winchester.

To illustrate his vigor of mind and body, in 1890, when 87 years old, he made an extended visit to Iowa and Minnesota, going and returning alone.
For the past few years he has been a familiar figure on our streets an honored visitor at the meetings of Chamberlin Post, where his interesting reminis-cences always found ready listeners.
On several of his birthdays and on at least one Memorial Day Chamberlin Post have honored him by notable social gatherings, some of which were accompanied with addresses from prominent members of the Post.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The commander of Chamberlin Post especially requests all veterans of the civil war, members of Chamberlin Post and the soldiers who served in the last war to meet in Grand Army Hall, Thursday at 1.30 p. m. for the purpose of attending in a body the funeral of Comrade Young.

Sargent.
Mrs. Sophronia M. Russ Sargent, wife of Cyrus Sargent, died at her home on Webster street on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 26, after an illness of nearly two years. She was born in Barnard, Nov.
12, 1832 and was therefore just entering upon her sixty-seventh year. Her early life was spent in Hartland and Woodstock, and a few years in St. Johnsbury previous to her marriage in 1857 to Mr.
Sargent, who still survives her. Two of her three children are living, Willis H. and Carrie B., also four brothers and one sister, all of them living out of town.

Mrs. Sargent was a woman whose life was rich in good works. In her home, in the community, in the church she discharged her duties with fidelity, without seeking prominence. She was always among the first in every good work.
She had a smile and kind word for everyone. Of a sympathetic nature, she carried comfort to many a heart and home to which trouble had come. The worthy poor found in her a friend and helper.

At one time a member of the South church she, after her marriage, transferred her allegiance to the Methodist church and in both church and Sunday school was an energetic and willing worker. Always exceedingly fond of flowers it was for many years her self appointed duty as well as her pleasure to provide flowers for the Sunday services. That her efforts were well appreciated is proved by the reciprocity which the ladies of the church and her other friends have shown in providing flowers in abundance for her during her long and painful illness. For many years she, associated with her husband, who has the general care of the church property, has looked carefully after the inside needs of the parsonage, and no church had a more faithful servant. In her death the church and community has lost a good woman, a true friend and a devout Christian. Her family will have the sympathy of all who knew her in their bereavement. Her funeral was held on Tuesday morning, at her late residence and was largely attended. The services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr.
Tyrie.

"The Twentieth Century."

Music Hall was fairly well filled on Friday evening and an appreciative audience listened for an hour and a half to Boston's greatest divine, Edward Everett Hale. The lecturer was graciously introduced by Prof. Comstock as America's pastor, and his subject was "The Twentieth Century." Dr. Hale was rarely confined to his notes and his vigorous style, the personality of the man and his own love of his subject all combined to make the lecture interesting to both young and old.

He began by referring to the fact that centuries were named by what occurred in them—the 15th century was the Columbus century, the 18th century the analytical century, the present the constructive century. Though it was easy to prophesy it was difficult to do so correctly. The speaker said that the twentieth would be characterized by three great achievements, all of which he amplified by striking illustrations. First, education would take the place of instruction—a man would be made out of a boy and a woman out of a girl. Secondly, there would be large and systematic transfers of people from the thickly settled portions of the globe to those places which are now so sparsely settled.
Lastly, the twentieth century would witness the coming of universal peace.
Besides the United States of America there would be the United States of Europe and above them all a supreme tribunal on whose door would be the sign, "International justice administered here."

Dr. Hale made his last point very clear with historical allusions and of events in many of the European countries. To prove his statement that universal peace could exist he cited the two centuries of universal peace in the early days of the Roman Empire, quoting extensively from Gibbon at this point.
Then over a thousand years later universal peace was almost assured under the plans of Henry IV. of France, when his
